DALLAS HOLOCAUST
MUSEUM CENTER
for EDUCATION and TOLERANCE

Winter Issue 2015

From Mary Pat Higgins, President and CEO

It is somewhat fitting that the Dallas Morning News article appeared online Monday, January 12, the same day France - following the Charlie Hebdo and Hyper Cacher kosher supermarket killings - deployed 10,000 troops across the country to protect sensitive sites such as France's 717 Jewish schools. The world still has a long way to go to overcome intolerance. MORE

Europe's Alarming New Antisemitism

Attacks and hateful rhetoric against Jews are on the rise - and It's not just Jews who should worry.

Tales from the Archive

In addition to loaning the Museum most of his lavish collection of Szyk artwork, our generous friends, Gregg and Michelle Philipson have gone even further to donate two rare books to the Museum's collection.

Ink and Blood: A Book of Drawings by Arthur Szyk and The New Order are compilations of Szyk's intricate and colorful political cartoons. Both are on display now in the Museum's gallery.
